INTRODUCTION

In Ukraine, during the years of independence, the structure and functioning of public authorities at all levels were constantly changing. The development of various forms of ownership and civil society requires the transformation of the bureaucratic apparatus into an effective governance system that will help protect the rights and legitimate interests of citizens. And this, in turn, determines the objective necessity for the further development and strengthening of the activities of public servants in new conditions.

The decisive criterion for such changes is the implementation of European standards of service to citizens and professional service of political leadership in the activities of Ukrainian employees. A deep understanding of the problems that arise in the process of forming the modern doctrine of public service, the very concept of public service, as well as the corresponding institution, will contribute to the development of a more rational approach to the formation of personnel policy in accordance with the new tasks and functions of the state, as well as to overcoming the alienation of society from public power, increasing the professionalism and competence of public servants. To successfully solve these tasks, appropriately trained public administration specialists are needed who will be able to apply the latest approaches and methods of managing public systems and processes based on the theory of public administration.

The purpose of the educational discipline: to form in students of the second educational level "master" of public management and administration a modern system of knowledge about the nature and theoretical foundations of democratic decentralization of public management of society, and to develop the ability to apply modern management technologies and tools in the practice of decentralization, using modern European models and experience.

To achieve the goal, students face the following main tasks: mastering the basics of methodological research in the field of public administration and theoretical foundations of democratic governance; mastering modern approaches to determining the effectiveness and efficiency of public administration, theories of models in public administration and the skills to identify them in practical activities; assimilation of knowledge about culture and ethics in public administration to resolve conflicts in the process of developing and implementing anti-stress measures; mastering modern mechanisms of social development management during the substantiation of trends in the development of social and political processes; assimilation of the country's innovative development priorities; development of directions for improving processes in the field of public administration.

The object of the educational discipline "Introduction to Public Administration" is social and political processes taking place in public administration.

The subject of the academic discipline is regularities, principles, functions, methods, means, models and processes in public administration and the development of practical recommendations for strengthening the influence of public administration in Ukraine.

The results of training and competence formed by the educational discipline are defined in the table 1.
